comes calmer, the maritime and com-mercial development of Italy will, in all probability, be very considerable, overy possibility of making invest-ments in the enterprises of that coun-try secarcially examined by capitalists great and small, and, if found really serious is warroly supported. At the great and small, and, if found really serious, is warmly supported. At the present moment the attention of the financial world in Paris is turned to the approaching issue of a loan Italy is about to raise on security of the to-bacco monopoly, which in that country, as is France, is in possession of the Government. The loan is to be 160,000,000 francs, or 27,200,000 and a society of capitalists, the principal of whom are the Messra Stern, of Paris, London and Frankfort, have undertaken to raise it. As security for their artvance, the Italian Government has turned over to them the said tobacco monoply for fifteen years, in which period the loan is to be reimbursed. The monoply for the present year will produce £3,760,000 in the gross and £2,400,000 net. But it is easy to effect very important savsent year will produce £3,760,000 in the gross and £2,400,000 net. But it is easy to effect very important savings in the management of the monopoly and, of course, they will be made. The eaplialist referred to have formed a company, with a capital in shares of £2,000,000, all of which they have subscribed themselves, and they intend, in addition to it, to issue 474,000 obligations of the nominal value of £20, bearing interest at six per cent, to cover the sum necessary for the loan and for working the monopoly. The price at which the obligations will be issued is £16 8s.—that is £3 12s. below the nominal value—and it is payable in installments. The Italian Government is to share in the profits of the monopoly above a certain amount, but the part in which it will have no share will be amply sufficient to pay for the interest on and the redemption of the obligations. It is probable, our Paris, letter says, that as the advantages presented by this affair are considerable, and as the security is unquestionably safe, the subscription in France to the obligations will be very large. Indeed, of all the Italian affaires presented of late years to the public, this seems to the French the safest and most profitable.

[From Sunshine and Shade.] A noted sportsman, taking dinner at one of our clubs, exhibited a di-amond ring of great beauty and ap-parent value on his finger. A gentleman present had a great passion for diamonds. After dinner the par ties met in the office. After much bantering the owner consented to bantering the owner consented to barter the ring for the sum of six hundred dollars. As the buyer left the room, a suppressed tittering struck his ear. He concluded the former-had sold both the ring and the purchaser. He said nothing, but called the next day upon a jeweler, where he learned that the diamond was paste and the ring worth about twenty five dollars. He examined some real diamonds, and found one closely resembling the paste in his own ring. He hired the diamond for a few days, pledged twelve hundred closely resembling the paste in his own ring. He hired the diamond for a few days, pledged twelve hundred dollars, the price of it, and kave a hundred dollars for its use. He went to another jeweler, had the paste removed, and the real diamond set.—His chums, knowing how he had been imposed upon, impatiently waited for his appearance the next night. To their astonishment they found him in high glee. He flurished his ring, boasted of his bargain and said if any gentleman present had a twelve hundred dollar ring to sell for aix hundred dollar ring to sell for aix hundred dollars, he knew of a purchaser. When he was told that the ring was paste, and that he had been cheated, he laughed at their folly.

Bets were freely offered that the ring did not contain a real diamond. Two men bet $1,000 each. Two bet $500. All were taken; umpires were chosen. The money and the ring were put into their hands. They went to a first-class jeweler, who applied all the tests, and who said the stone was a diamound of the first water, and was worth, without the setting, $1,200. The buyer put the $3,000 which he had won quietly in his pocket. He carried the diamond back and recalled his $1,200, and with his paste ring on his finger went to his club. The man who sold the ring was waiting for him. He wanted to get the ring back; he attempted to turn the whole thing into a joke. He get the ring back; he attempted to turn the whole thing into a loke. He sold the ring, he said, for fun; he knew it was a real diamond all the knew it was a real diamond all the time. He never wore faise jewels,—He could tell a real diamond any where by its peculirlight. He would not be so mean as to cheat an old friend. He knew his friend would let him have the ring again. But his friend was stubborn; said that the seller thought that it was paste, and intended to defraud him. At length, on the payment of $800, the ring was restored. All parties came to the conclusion, when the whole affair came out, that when diamond cuts diamond again, some one less sharp diamond again, some one less sharp will be selected.

JOSH BILLINGS ON MILK.

I want to say something.

There are various kinds uv milk.— There iz sweet milk, skim milk, but-ter milk, cow milk, and the milk ov human kindness, but mostest best milk iz the milk that hazn't the most water in it. Butter milk izzent the best for but-

Milk and bread is a pleasant mixtor. Sometimes, if milk iz aloud to stand too long, a seum rises to the surface, which iz apt to skare fokes that live in cities, but it duzzent foller that it iz nasty. This seum is called kreeze by fokes who inhabit
the kuntry.

Kreme iz the parent of butter, and butter iz 70 cents a pound.

The most common with in me.

The most common milk in use, without doubt, is skim milk; skim milk is made by skimming the milk, which is considered sharp practiss.

Milk is obtained from cows, hogs, woodchux, rats, sheep, squirrels, and all other animals that have hair.—Snaix and goese don't give milk. I forgot to state, in conclusion, that for cents per quart.
